STATEMENT

(In the space below, please provide the showing of unavoidable delay recited in paragraph 8 above.) 1

On 1/20/10 I went online to pay the maint. fee for this patent and submitted banking info. to have the sum electronically transferred. An error message came up so I reentered the info. and an error message came up again. (As you can see by the enclosed e-mail there was no reason for this to have not gone through) I couldn't find anywhere on the site that would explain the error message so I called the maintenance fee branch for assistance.

I reached a representative who identified himself as Michael. He told me he couldn't check the codes and advised me to file a credit card payment form. I transferred funds from 1 acct. to another on 1/22 so I could use my debit/credit card. (continued)

(Please attach additional sheets if additional space is needed)

After doing this I called the main branch again on 1/25 to get the fax # to send in the credit card form. I faxed in the form at 11:25 A.M. on 1/25 and thought I was all set.

I checked my acct on 1/26 and didn't see the $ taken out yet but sometimes it doesn't show up the same day.

On 1/27 I called the maint. branch at 8:50 A.M. and talked to Michael again because the money hadn't been deducted. I told him I was concerned because I knew the fee had to be paid that day. He looked it up and told me. "You don't have to worry, there is a time stamp on your credit card app. for 1/25. The person who runs the cards probably hasn't run it yet." I then asked what happens if the card doesn't go thru for some reason. He said they will call if there is a problem.

On 2/1 I called the maint. branch again because the $ hadn't been taken out of my acct. And I had received no calls or messages on my machine indicating there were any problems. I reached the same Michael

I had talked to previously. At this time he gave me the same answer that apparently the card hadn't been submitted yet and to give it a couple more days.

On 2/3/10 I received the letter saying my payment hadn't been accepted and my patent had expired!

I then called the bank to find out why my card hadn't been accepted when I had adequate funds in the account. I was told that debit/credit cards automatically have a $500/day limit and that with a call this can be changed immediately.

I made every effort to pay this fee by 1/27 and made several calls to verify payment. I was consistently told not to worry by the maint. branch rep. and never received a call or message that there was a problem with payment going through. If I had known there was a problem I could have corrected it with one call.
